ON THE COVER

Doug Evans says it has been his mission this season to take his game to a new level. He means it, too. Through eight games the cornerback was leading the team in passes defended and appears virtually certain to set an unofficial club record. For more, see pages 12-13.

Believe it or not, the Packers are actually pretty good if you take away the 10 turnovers and two big plays in the last two games.

It was perhaps the longest four minutes the Green Bay Packers ever had to wait. It was worth it, however, as Green Bay edged Chicago in a memorable '89 game.

Third-string quarterback T.J. Rubley guides the offense late in the game.

Packers need to step it up

The Green Bay Packers' 27-24 loss to the Minnesota Vikings Sunday is just the type of game the Packers cannot let get away.

The Packers had six turnovers to the Vikings' one and that was the main reason they lost, but they also just let the game get away from them. You can blame the offense and you can blame the defense, but you've got to find ways to win and not to lose. It's an old story, but you can't beat yourself. You can't let up against anybody. You have to play four quarters and you just can't turn the ball over.

We saw some good things on defense and some good things on offense Sunday, but we need to see it more consistently. Somehow the guys have to step up.

You've got to put a lot of pressure on an opponent and show some toughness. The Packers seem to be lacking the mental and physical toughness lately that they need to have to win.

Brett Favre threw a couple of bad passes but he's not the reason the Packers lost. As bad as we played, the game was still within our reach. That's what's frustrating. You're gonna have bad games, but you can't beat yourself.

We basically gave the Vikings an early Christmas present. The gift also keeps the Vikings in the running for the Central Division title.

When you play good you make big plays and win. We moved the ball, ran the ball and looked good doing it, but you can't turn it over against anybody, especially in the National Football League. There's more parity in the league now than ever before. A team just has to be ready. You can't take anybody for granted.

When the Vikings came to Lambeau Field on Oct. 22, it was just the opposite. We made them turn the ball over and we got to their quarterback Warren Moon.

Sunday, the Packers were forced to play all three of their quarterbacks. I don't ever recall seeing the Packers use all three of their quarterbacks.

The injuries obviously hurt the Packers. The key injury was to Favre. Hopefully he will be able to play this Sunday against the Chicago Bears. I think they can get along even without Reggie White, who suffered a knee injury and will miss at least a month of action.

Ray Nitschke

Featured columnist

Injuries are part of the game. The other guys are just going to have to suck it up. They've got to pick it up. It's a long season and teams are going to have injuries. It's all how you react to them. The team needs to rally around itself and stick together.

White is a great player and his absence will hurt, but the Packers got to hang in there play better than they've been playing. You can't get down because certain guys are hurt. That's part of the game and it's unfortunate. It happens to everybody.

The Packers are just a game behind the Bears. They have to be ready for this one Sunday at Lambeau against their archrival. The Bears have been playing well, despite losing to Pittsburgh Sunday. The Bears move the ball. They throw the ball and they run the ball effectively.

It's an important game, especially after losing the last two games the way we did. The Packers got to get hungry and get into the race. They've got to get back into winning. What a better time to beat the Bears!

A stinging setback

Favre, White go down, so do mistake-prone Packers

MINNEAPOLIS — Of all the mistakes the Green Bay Packers made against the Minnesota Vikings Sunday, the one that hurt the Packers the most never appeared in the final statistics.

An audible that third-string quarterback T.J. Rubley may never forget and always regret with a little more than a minute left in the game backfired, enabling the Vikings to come up with a key interception and a 27-24 victory over the Packers on Fuad Reveiz's 39-yard field goal as time expired.

The Packers (5-4) not only were stinging from the loss but left the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome aching with injuries to a number of key players.

Defensive end Reggie White may miss up to six weeks after he injured the medial collateral ligament in his right knee in a collision with teammate Sean Jones in the fourth quarter. Quarterbacks Brett Favre and Ty Detmer also left the game with injuries.

Favre severely sprained his left ankle but should be able to play this Sunday against the Chicago Bears at Lambeau Field. Detmer tore a ligament in his right thumb after throwing an interception midway through the fourth quarter and is expected to miss a number of games. It was uncertain after the game how long Detmer will be out.

A handful of other Packers were banged up during the game, including Jones. Jones was reportedly taken to a Minneapolis hospital after the game and may have suffered a mild concussion in the collision with White.

The Packers, who committed four turnovers in a loss to the Detroit Lions in the previous week, turned it over to the Vikings six times in losing for the ninth straight time on artificial turf. Meanwhile, the Vikings, who ended a three-game losing streak and improved to 4-5 turned it over once. The Packers had seven second-half possessions and turned it over five times.

"You turn the ball over in this league and you're not going to win too many ballgames," said receiver Anthony Morgan, who also left the game briefly with a leg injury. "We've got to execute every time when you're on the road. The crowd is in the game and it's a hostile environment. When you turn the ball over, it does nothing but hurt you."

Rubley, a off-season free-agent acquisition who missed all of last season with an elbow injury after playing in nine games and starting seven for the Los Angeles Rams in 1993, fumbled the snap from Frank Winters on his first play on the

The Packers, however, got the ball back when LeRoy Butler forced a fumble on James Stewart which was recovered by George Teague.

Rubley ran for six yards and then completed five of six passes, moving the Packers to the Vikings' 38 with 1:09 left in the game and two timeouts remaining.

On a third and inches, Packers' coach Mike Holmgren called for a quarterback sneak, but Rubley called an audible at the line of scrimmage. He rolled to his right, and under pressure, threw toward Robert Brooks. The pass was broken up by Robert Griffith and knocked into the hands of ex-Packer Jeff Brady to the roaring approval of the 62,839 fans with 50 seconds left.

"They covered it well and I just made a poor decision once the initial receiver was covered," said Rubley.

"It's a tough situation for a young guy," said Holmgren of Rubley. "He went in there and did the best he could. It's too bad. He did a couple of good things. Unfortunately, he didn't get it done when he had to."

Warren Moon, who completed 21 of 39 passes for 237 yards and three touchdowns, threw a 23-yard strike to Jake Reed to Green Bay's 49. A play later he hit Reed again. Reed shed a tackle by Lenny McGill and bulled his way to the 27, setting up Reveiz's game-winning field goal.

"The good thing is we've got a long season left," said Teague. "It's not like the last game of the season. It's a loss and you have to look at it that way. It's done. It's over with. We'll go on and try to win the rest of them."

Ty Detmer calls out a play during the second half.

The Packers tied the game at 24 early in the fourth quarter when Detmer hit Mark Chmura with a two-yard touchdown pass and a subsequent two-point conversion. Reveiz missed a 47-yard field goal on the Vikings' next series after the Vikings were penalized five yards for a false start. But the Packers turned it over on their next three possessions.

"I felt good out there," said Detmer. "I just didn't get to finish."

Turnovers too much to bear

MINNEAPOLIS – Packer fans, these are tough times.

I got home Sunday night after being part of the broadcast of the game against the Vikings on the Packer Radio Network. My 12-year-old daughter, Marie, asked if the Packers won. I said "No, but thanks for listening." She responded with, "The Packers suck."

Besides drawing a look from me because of the language, here's my own flesh and blood confusing "our" team with the Bears, not to mention the fact that she was wrong. The Packers are actually pretty good, in fact, just a couple weeks ago they were being touted nationally as the second best team in the NFC.

What has happened since is not a total collapse. They outgained the Lions 443-407. They outgained the Vikings 344-319. In each game, Green Bay did a bunch of things right. Unfortunately, they also did one huge thing wrong – turn the ball over.

The Packers gave it to Detroit admittedly with some help from the officials – four times. Against the Vikings, that number climbed to six. Ask any coach, any level, if you can win with 10 turnovers in two games, and he'd look at you like you were crazy for even asking the question.

The scary part is the Packers were actually in position to win both games despite the turnovers. A sack of Brett Favre and the resulting fumble cost Green Bay a shot at the Lions game. An ill-fated decision by T.J. Rubley to audible to a pass was the final nail in the coffin against the Vikings. Just two plays away despite 10 turnovers.

That says two things. Number one, the Packers have more than enough talent to compete, and number two, that talent has to live up to its potential, especially when it comes to maintaining possession of the football.

There are seven games left in the regular season and that's plenty of time for the Packers to regain their status as the second best team in the NFC. (Incidentally, only one of those games is on artificial turf.)

First and foremost, they have to return to the stinginess when it comes to turning the ball over that they were enjoying when they built a 5-2 record. It wasn't long ago we were bragging how the Packers hadn't lost a fumble all year.

Larry McCarren

They also need to maintain the chemistry that's been nothing but positive to date. These are tough times for the players as well, but the last thing they need is for finger-pointing to start. The best way for any individual to help his team out of a slump is to look in the mirror and ask, "How can I play better?"

At deadline time, the health status of Brett Favre, Ty Detmer, Reggie White, et al was not known. A little good luck in that regard certainly wouldn't hurt either.

But that's something the Packers can't control. The things they can control, like ball security, and attitude, are the things that need to be focused on as they head down the stretch.

The Packers still have a shot at a "special" season. If they get it, they deserve all the credit in the world. If they don't, they'll have no one to blame but themselves.

■ Packers

Chris Jacke, for the second straight week, was perfect on all three of his field-goal attempts. Jacke gave the Packers a 16-10 halftime lead by splitting the uprights from 42, 50 and 46 yards, respectively, in the second quarter.

The Vikings came out strong in the third quarter. Minnesota moved 61 yards on six plays and took a 17-16 lead on Moon's five-yard touchdown to Cris Carter, who caught 9 passes for 91 yards.

Charles Mincy intercepted Favre's pass at the Packers' 26 and returned it 17 yards, setting up Moon's nine-yard touchdown pass to Reed that gave Minnesota a 24-16 lead.

Edgar Bennett's 13-yard touchdown run capped an 8-play, 86-yard opening drive by the Packers. But Minnesota scored 10 unanswered points on Reviez's 36-yard field goal and Moon's three-yard pass to Andrew Jordan to lead 10-7.

■ Charles Jordan did not suit up because of a sore knee. Rookie Antonio Freeman filled in, returning six punts for 62 yards, including an impressive 25-yard return, and three kickoffs for 57 yards.

■ The Packers haven't won in the Metrodome since 1991.

■ Bennett now has a career-high 189 rushing attempts and is 13th on the Packers' all-time rushing list ahead of Terrell Middleton (1977-81) with 2,114 yards. Bennett, who carried 19 times for 70 yards Sunday, has 659 for the season, 26 more than he gained last year.

Packers hard to beat at home

By Todd Korth

The Green Bay Packers have been tough to beat at home since Coach Mike Holmgren arrived in 1992 and that's good news since the Packers will be playing three of their next four games at Lambeau Field.

The Packers are 15-3 during the regular season at Lambeau Field since 1992, including a 3-1 mark this season. Green Bay is 23-6 overall at home since Holmgren took over.

Green Bay ends its crucial five-game stretch against Central Division opponents this Sunday against the Chicago Bears at Lambeau Field. The Packers then play at Cleveland before returning home against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and the Cincinnati Bengals.

Just the stats: Edgar Bennett's 121-yard effort Oct. 29 against the Detroit Lions lifted him into sixth place among the NFC rushing leaders heading into Week 10. It's the highest position Bennett has occupied during his four-year NFL career.

Bennett, who is on pace to break the 1,000-yard mark rushing for the first time since 1978 in Green Bay, also was ranked sixth in the NFC in total yards from scrimmage with 850, including 261 receiving.

Bennett's performance at Detroit pushed him past Joe Laws (1,932), Barty Smith (1,942) and the late Floyd "Breezy" Reid (1,964) to take over 14th place in rushing on the Packers' all-time top 20 list with 1,976.

Green Bay's offense moved up from 12th to eighth place in the NFL after the first nine weeks (23rd in rushing, 3rd in passing). Meanwhile, the defense dropped from second to eighth (17th against the run and 7th against the pass).

The Packers rank fourth in the NFC on both offense and defense - 10th in rushing and first in passing on offense, and 9th against the run and 2nd against the pass on defense.

New linebacker: The Packers signed free agent linebacker Robert Bass to the practice squad on Oct. 30.

Bass, who played collegiately at Miami (Fla.), originally signed as a free agent by the Chicago Bears and spent the '94 season on injured reserve with a knee injury suffered in training camp.

Bass was cut by the Bears on Aug. 22 and re-signed on Sept. 12. He was waived again on Sept. 29.

Injury report: Defensive back Keith Crawford has a sprained knee ligament and will be out until the end of November.

Crawford injured his knee against the Detroit Lions on Oct. 29.

Charles Jordan (knee) and Doug Evans (ankle) missed a few practices last week. Jordan, the team's primary kick and punt returner and No. 4 receiver, was listed as questionable for Sunday's game at Minnesota. Evans was listed as probable.

Willis goes to Eagles: Linebacker James Willis, cut by the Packers on Oct. 25, joined his former coach Ray Rhodes and the Philadelphia Eagles on Nov. 1.

Willis, whose two seasons in Green Bay were cut short by a broken leg and a knee injury, played in 25 games for the Packers without a start. Willis had a strong training camp this season but broke his leg during the preseason and did not play during the regular season.

The Eagles now have four former Packers, including tight ends Ed West and Reggie Johnson, and lineman Guy McIntyre.

Tryouts: Receivers Bucky Brooks and Darrick Owens, fullback/tight end Kevin Smith and defensive end Herman Carroll were in for tryouts with the Packers last week.

Trivia winner

Curt Brandt of Fayetteville, N.C., won a copy of "Packer Legends in Facts," a new book by Eric Goska, by correctly answering a trivia question in the Packer Report published in the Oct. 21 issue.

Brandt was selected from a number of people who correctly answered that Chester Marcol made the most field goals as a Packer in their rookie season. Marcol booted 33 in 1972.

To win, all answers must be post-marked no later than one week from the date on the cover of the Packer Report. If there is more than one correct answer, a drawing will be held to select a winner. The books will be mailed out by Tech/Data Publications, Germantown, Wis., (414) 251-7027.

From the day in 1961 when Vince Lombardi said, "You're my trainer!" until he retired 32 years later, Domenic Gentile was a vital part of the Green Bay Packers. This is his story—a story of glory and defeat, pain and victory. More than any other book, it tells what it takes to be a player in the National Football League. Written with Gary D'Amato, award-winning sports writer with the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel.

Turning the corner

Evans takes his game to new level

There is a growing impression, as the 1995 season moves into its second half, that Douglas Edwards Evans has quietly taken his game to a new level.

If so — and the Packers' individual defensive statistics substantially document this conclusion — it is no accident. A serious, dedicated athlete, the high-cut cornerback will be quick to tell you it has been his mission to scale a new professional plateau ever since training camp began in late July.

Evans, who appears virtually certain to set an unofficial club record for most passes defended in a season, says, "That's what I really wanted to accomplish, coming into this year — establishing myself as a better player...a different role on the team."

"Last year (when he suddenly was thrust into starting status at right cornerback in Week 2 following a career-ending injury to Roland Mitchell)...I was just trying to hang in there and try to do the best for the team."

"But this year, I kind of want to step up and kind of like be like a leader, and set an example."

With a year's experience as a starter, Doug acknowledged, has come a proprietary approach.

Asked if he now feels the position belongs to him, he promptly affirmed, "I do...And I think the Green Bay Packers believe that it belongs to me...(They) signed me up for three years and, you know, that gives you a lot of confidence. It tells you that they want you to be here, and they want you to be the man.

"You don't have to worry about a lot of other things...You can play your game...You can be more confident and more comfortable in the situation that you're playing in."

Judging by the statistics, there can be little question that the rangy Shreveport, La., native is playing "his" game. For openers, at the season's midpoint, he led the Packer secondary by the equivalent of light years in passes defended with a total of 16 — more than double that of his closest fellow defender and one more than he was credited with over the entire 1994 season. He also was out front in interceptions with two and second only to strong safety LeRoy Butler in total tackles with 50 (Butler led with 54). Moreover, Evans also owned the only quarterback sack by a member of the Packer "outfield."

Doug Evans will likely break the team record of 25 passes defended this season. He had a team-high 16 through the first eight games.

The key factor in his upsurge?

"Just working hard...good work habits," Evans said. "Doing the things that I need to do: watching film, studying receivers more...working on the field."

Along the way, these efforts have elicited a glowing tribute from Defensive Coordinator Fritz Shurmur, who described Evans' performance against the Vikings Oct. 22 as "a fantastic day for a cornerback."

During the course of it, the third-year pro from Louisiana Tech intercepted two Viking passes, was credited with 7 passes defensed and amassed a career-high 9 tackles (7 solos and 2 assists) as the Packers out-gunned Minnesota, 38-21.

His first theft figured prominently in the winning cause, coming as it did early in the third quarter with the score tied 14-all and the Vikings deep in Green Bay's end of the field. Evans not only waylaid a Warren Moon pass at the Packer 13-yard-line to end the threat but returned it 24 yards to the Packer 37, putting the Green and Gold in position to drive for what proved to be the go-ahead touchdown.

Oddly enough, in retrospect, Doug does not consider it his best overall effort.

"Stat-wise, I believe so," he conceded. "(But) I was telling a lot of the other guys that there was a lot of things that I did wrong in the game...that I felt kind of bad. I probably could have had a couple more interceptions or a couple more (pass) breakups and tackles. And, you know, myself, I've probably played better. But not stat-wise."

Evans feels the best asset he brings to his position is one that cannot be measured statistically.

"Seriously, I think it's the knack of playing football - my instinct," he said. "That's what I was born and raised off of - the instinct of playing football. I mean I've never really been that great an athlete, but I've always had good work habits and just the instinct where the ball was going to be...and just go out and make plays...just a natural instinct."

Physically, he acknowledges that his height (6-2) "helps a lot - especially when you go up against big receivers. Sometimes it's a good matchup and sometimes...you have to use every advantage you can as a corner out there to be in your favor, because you're out there alone on an island and you're going to need every little thing you have to help you."

Assessing the individual challenges he faces, week in and week out, Evans says, "I have to think of guys like Michael Irvin, big guys...Cris Carter...Herman Moore. Guys like that, because they're so big and strong, and they're fast. So you can't take one play off against guys like that. It doesn't take but one play to get them in the end zone. One big play...and they're all big-time receivers. One big play and they can get back in the game. So you have to respect guys like that.

"The pressure's always on...always on. You can never let down as a corner."

Not of the prototypical physique to play his position, Evans admits he is "somewhat" surprised to find himself starting at cornerback in the National Football League.

"It's kind of hard to put a guy of my stature and build in certain situations," he said, "because I'm really kind of too small to play a safety - strong safety-free safety...And, you know, maybe I would say too tall or too big to play corner. But, you know, I work hard and I think it all fits together. I think my body's probably made more for a corner."

But it was not the role he had envisioned for himself coming into the NFL.

"I was thinking more of a safety," Doug said, "because that's all I played throughout college - that and linebacker. But I never had played corner, so that was my last idea - that I would be playing corner in the NFL."

He assures, however, that he was confident he would be playing some position.

"I knew if I got a true opportunity to get out there on the field and show them what I could do, I felt real good about that," Doug asserted. "To me, in my heart, there was no way I could be denied."

Evans was surprised to learn he already was imperiling the Packers' single season record for passes defensed (25).

"To be honest, I didn't come into the season looking at that, really," he said, adding, "It was brought to my attention a couple weeks ago. But, you know, if it happens, it happens. I don't look at stats now. I'll just wait until the end of the season and then look at them because stats don't mean anything if you're not winning."

Although he has been performing at a high level, Evans sees at least one area where he feels the need of improvement.

"I think I need to work on my footwork," he said. "Get quicker on some things movement-wise...lateral movement and movement back and forth. Just my footwork and trying to get an instinct on the ball...Just getting a better instinct to break to the ball."

Asked if he has been attempting to assist rookie Craig Newsome, his opposite number at cornerback, Doug rejoined, "Oh, definitely, especially earlier in the year. Just trying to show him things that will help him out as a cornerback - show him situations cornerbacks can get in...But you just have to keep your head up and just keep playing...because one play is not going to make you - one play is not going to win the game for the opponent. Teams are going to score, teams are going to catch passes on you...You just have to keep your head up...I talk to him about the mental part of it and some physical parts of it, too."

Although he admitted having personal and professional compassion for Newsome when the latter was victimized by Detroit's Herman Moore the previous weekend, Evans put the situation in perspective. "I know Craig's a strong man. He can handle it. You just have to let it go. It's going to happen...sometimes. But one thing I like about Craig - he's never going to let down. Some guys in that type situation, you know, just die...and just role over. But Craig continues to fight, and that's what I like about him."

As a unit, No. 33 finds his group "the closest secondary I've been in since I've been here. We all work well together as a group. If you can get that, it's real good."

Evans also feels "there is more team unity now than there has been, because I don't think we have too many selfish guys on the team...We all work well together - we all want to help each other out."

As a result, he said, "I think we're only going to get better. Right now, halfway through the season, we look better than we ever have since I've been here...And that's saying a lot for this team."

"And we've always finished strong since I've been here," Doug said, looking ahead. "So, right now, I think it looks very good."

Also, of course, for Doug Evans.

"I knew I had the heart and everything," he said, summing up his personal perspective. "It took my skills a year or so to catch up to my heart...And, right now, I think I'm on track."

Grass vs. turf touchy topic

On Sunday nights after a Packer game, safety LeRoy Butler sits down with TV sportscaster John Maino for a half-hour show to hash over that day's game.

Butler, ever upbeat and the optimist, was disappointed with the 24-16 loss to the Lions in Detroit's Silverdome but definitely not downhearted.

The discussion got around to Barry Sanders, the Lions' great running back, who gained 167 yards.

Said LeRoy: "Barry can cut on a dime on that surface but otherwise he can cut on a nickel."

Butler's version of "that surface" was artificial turf, commonly called the carpet. Butler's "otherwise" was grass.

Carpet or grass, Sanders is truly an exceptional runner — by far the best in the league. Sure, Emmitt Smith of the Dallas Cowboys is a great one, but he's running behind the NFL's best offensive line.

In two games vs. the Packers, Sanders ran 40 times for 291 yards, average 7.2. Yet, the Packers beat the Lions on the grass of Lambeau Field where Sanders gained 124 yards. At Detroit, Sanders posted 22-167 for 7.6, but it could have been immaterial if the Packers hadn't squandered 14 points on two dropped short end zone passes.

Of course, Sanders and Smith must be given their due, especially on the carpet, but I'm a Packer fan and you know what all good Packer fans think when Sanders, Smith or any other back runs through the Pack.

Just this: lousy tackling.

It's tough to see all our good defensive guys get juiced and left sprawling by some slippery back. It's enough to make any good Packer fan utter an expletive. If you feel bad, just think how Packer defenders feel. I'm sure our defensive people yell many unprintables.

Enough of that. Today's collection of syllables has to do with God-made grass and man-made turf.

It's a rather touchy subject in the sense that nobody wants our football lads to get a head thing about the carpet. The loss at Detroit was the Pack's eighth straight regular-season loss on the carpet. It started with the fifth carpet game in 1993. There were five straight carpet losses in 1994 and two this season.

Art Daley Featured columnist

Since Coach Mike Holmgren took over in 1992 there were three season wins on the carpet, 27-13 at Detroit, a huge 16-14 win over the Houston Oilers in 1992 and the exciting 19-17 game at New Orleans in '93.

The Packers are 1-2 in playoffs played on the carpet. The Pack beat the Lions at the Silverdome after the 1993 season. The two losses were on Dallas' carpet.

The Packers have played 55 regular season games under Holmgren, not counting last Sunday's test at Minnesota (on the carpet, yet). The Bays were 29-10 on grass and 3-13 on the carpet. Of those 13 losses, nine were at the hands of the Cowboys, Vikings, and Lions, at three each. A powerhouse and two natural rivals!

Probably the only difference in grass and artificial turf is that the game might be a shade faster on the carpet. For example, it would be easier for a running back or receiver to "cut" on the carpet rather than on grass which would "give." That goes for the defenders, too. Everybody is maybe a half step faster, give or take.

With the addition of Jacksonville and Carolina, it is interesting to note that the NFL now has 15 grass teams and 15 on the carpet. The NFC has eight carpet teams and seven on grass. It's 8-7 in favor of grass in the AFC.

How about 1994? The 13 grass teams were 115-93 (.552). The 15 carpet teams went 109-131 (.454).

Super Bowl XXIX was played on the grass of Joe Robbie Stadium in Miami by two grass teams, San Francisco and San Diego. That was the first time two grass teams played in the Super Bowl since 1990 when the 49ers and Broncos battled on the Superdome carpet in New Orleans.

Unfortunately, the NFL has seven teams that play on the carpet in outdoor ball parks, Buffalo, Cincinnati, New York Giants and Jets, Pittsburgh, Dallas and Philadelphia. They should all play on grass, but it's cheaper maintenance-wise on the carpet.

The grass at Lambeau Field is getting its first big test since this is the first year away from Milwaukee. All 10 games are being played in Lambeau. The field has an electric grid under the surface to keep it from freezing for late games.

The Packers have had various problems over the years with the grass at Lambeau. One year during the 1960s, the field was resodded but it turned out like a carpet on a hard-wood floor. It was slippery to say the least.

The Packers' famous Ice Bowl of 1967 saw the Lambeau Field just freeze solid in the 13-below weather with a wind chill of 46 below. The electric grid could not stop the freeze. Players of both teams wore regular cleated shoes.

The Packers hosted their first NFL championship game Dec. 31, 1961. The Packers covered the field with more than a foot of hay, at quite an expense I might add, and the field was actually a light green, dry and fast.

Come to think of it, what happens to artificial turf when it's, say, 13 below? I'll call Buffalo!

We're Not Typical.

It would be pretty difficult for VAN'S to be just another typical new car dealer when we sell cars like the Honda Accord, the #1 retailed automobile, and the exotic Mitsubishi Eclipse.

And...when every car we sell comes with a list of special benefits like those offered exclusively at VAN'S ...well, being typical is downright impossible!

Consider these clearly non-typical benefits of buying your new car at Van's:

- ▶ first tank of gas free
- ▶ 48-hour money-back guarantee
- ▶ free annual spring inspection
- ▶ free shuttle rides in the greater Green Bay area during servicing
- ▶ valuable service discount options and: VAN'S own 100,000 mile buyer protection plan on Hondas...at no charge!

Van's prices on new Hondas and Mitsubishi's are unusually attractive... they're clearly the best around. What's more, Van's #1 rated sales and service departments stand behind every car we sell with a dedication that is definitely not typical. So, if you're looking for the same old song and dance from a new car dealer, try the other guys. When you're looking for something special, come to Van's.

Fans ask:

Linebacker Wayne Simmons

Q: What were your feelings when Bryce Paup came in when you got hurt and kept the starting role?

Jack Marquardt
Juneau, Wis.

Simmons: "Well, you know, we're a defensive unit and Bryce was one of the main guys. He was playing my backup then and when I got hurt, we just had to make an adjustment which we did with the linebacking staff."

He came in and as I thought, he filled in real nice. When I got better, he was playing that position at a high level. They just kept him in there and I thought they made a smart decision."

Q: You played for Clemson while Robert Brooks was catching passes for bitter intra-state rival South Carolina. Did you have any interesting "confrontations" with Brooks during your college years? Is it difficult to "get along" with an ex-Gamecock as a teammate?

Greg Dickinson

"Ask a Player"

Packer Report wants your questions for a feature interview with players. Send us your questions for Dorsey Levens, Joe Kelly, Craig Hentrich and Charles Jordan. If we publish your question, you will receive a special autographed photo of the player. Send questions to:

"Player interview"

Estell Manor, N.J.

Simmons: (laughing) "Me and Brooks played on an all-star team in South Carolina against North Carolina. It's called the Shrine Bowl. I knew of him. I knew him pretty good. You know — he was a Gamecock guy."

The only kind of confrontation I had with him was when he was kind of split out wide and I had to cover down on him. He came out and he went to chop at me. I kind of jumped out of the way. He said, 'Don't worry big boy. I'm not gonna take your knees out from under you.' That's the only kind of confrontation I had with him, and it was mighty nice of him."

Q: At Clemson you were very successful playing the "Bandit" position, which enabled you to read offensive sets and roam the line of scrimmage. Did you feel more comfortable in that role or do you prefer the 4-3 set you're in with the Packers?

Rob Berghorn
Riverside, Calif.

Simmons: "You don't really care what kind of defensive set you have — 50 defense or 4-3 — it doesn't really matter. A linebacker is a linebacker. You take on the blocks or get off of them."

"I'm gonna be honest with you. Playing the 'Bandit' position, you were free to do a lot of things. Cover down, stunt wherever you want to stunt. It just gives you a free knack of just playing like that."

Q: You have replaced Bryce Paup in the starting lineup this year. Do you feel the pressure to play as well as Paup did?

Jeremy Rochlitz
Big Springs, Neb.

Simmons: "No. No pressure whatsoever. If we're gonna sit down and dissect what Bryce gave or what he was to this defense, it's gonna take more than Wayne Simmons to pretty much fill the void or fill the gap."

This guy was an every down guy. I am as well, but still yet I don't play the same type of position or do the same type of things that he did. It's gonna take a team effort to fill the void."

Q: If it wasn't for your early career injuries, do you feel you would have been in a similar situation as Bryce Paup (Pro Bowl, big contract)?

Ed Behnke
Hartford, Wis.

Simmons: "Bryce is a guy who pretty much has been in the league for four or five years (actually six). He's worked hard. He's prepared himself hard. Given the opportunity, he excelled at a high level. I don't think things would have happened to me the way they happened to Bryce in the same situation."

Simmons

Q: Linebackers who blitz seem to get more recognition. Does that bother you since you are a run stuffer and pass protector, mainly a good one?

Joe Meyers
Marinette, Wis.

Simmons: "Not really because in this league you have to be versatile. Those guys who rush the passer all the time pretty much neglect their other duties of being a good, versatile linebacker."

"Anybody can rush. You can be an excellent pass rusher because anybody can rush the passer. I'm trying to excel in all areas. I think everything else will take care of itself in terms of recognition."

Q: How does it feel now that you've overcome injuries the last two seasons, going into the 3rd season on one of the top defenses in the NFL?

Shannon E. Bryant
Hardeeville, S.C.

Simmons: "This is where I wanted to be when I came to Green Bay. Unfortunately these things did happen and I overcame them. It was a lot of adversity. I didn't think I'd have to go through so much red tape, but I did. I'm not bitter about it. That's life."

"Right now, I'm not comfortable and I'm not just glad to be here. I'm just trying to make my mark."

Q: Is being a linebacker a difficult position?

Cale Rasmussen
Wauchula, Fla.
5th grader

Simmons: "It's a fun position. It's hard work, I'll tell you that. When you pretty much get good at it, that's where the fun comes in, but believe me, once you're starting it's a pretty hard position to play."

Q: Who was your favorite NFL player when you were growing up?

Gary Bauer
Riverside, Calif.

Simmons: "That would be Jack Lambert. I just loved what he brought to the game, so much emotion. Early on, it was pretty much Lawrence Taylor. I can only gleam at some of the things he did. It was those two guys."

Q: How good do you feel the linebackers as a group are?

Dean Marquardt
Menomonie, Wis.

Simmons: "I think we pretty much have the key elements right now. We understand each other. We love working with one another. With those whole group of guys, we compete and we try to compete at a high level. We're not there right now, but hopefully we can peak when this team really needs us. I think we can make a significant contribution, but we're not where we want to be right now."

Bears happy with progress

By David Marran

Bears coach Dave Wannstedt was pleased with his team's progress at the season's halfway point.

The Bears were 6-2 and in first place in the NFC Central.

"There are things you want when you get to this point: that you're not fighting an uphill battle — and we've got more wins than we do losses — and that we're better than we were last year at this point," Wannstedt said.

A year ago, the Bears were 4-4 after eight games.

Still hurting: The Bears were still awaiting the return of "Ultraback" Raymont Harris as they prepared for their Nov. 5 game with Pittsburgh.

Harris, who gained 464 yards and caught 39 passes last year, broke his collarbone on the season's first play from scrimmage. The Ohio State product was healing quicker than anticipated but wasn't ready for the Steeler game. Second-year performer Tony Carter was starting in place of Harris.

Manic Mondays: The Bears' win over the Vikings on Monday Night Football Oct. 30 was the team's first in eight tries.

The 14-6 win at the Metrodome ended the longest losing streak in the history of Monday Night Football.

The Bears are 13-26 in front of Al, Frank and Dan. The last of the Bears' three prime time appearances is Dec. 4 against Detroit in the Silverdome.

The last time the Bears won a MNF game in a place other than Minnesota was Dec. 15, 1986, in the Silverdome. The last time the Bears won a MNF game outdoors was Sept. 22, 1986, at Lambeau Field.

Dropsies: Rookie running back Rashaan Salaam fumbled four times in the Bears' first eight games.

Herman Moore is quickly ascending to the elite class of receivers in the NFL.

Moore caught three touchdowns for 147 yards in a Oct. 29 win over the Green Bay Packers.

The performance gave him six TD grabs in his last three games and put him over the century mark for the fourth time in eight games.

"He's so strong that he doesn't have to be wide open to make the play," Detroit quarterback Scott Mitchell said.

Moore is so good that the Lions have a designed play for him when he is covered.

"I'm supposed to throw the ball behind him to have him come back to the ball," Mitchell said. "It's difficult to defend."

Movin' on up: Barry Sanders' 167 yards vs. the Packers Oct. 29 moved him into 10th place on the NFL's all-time rushing list with 9,510 yards.

Sanders passed Earl Campbell. Next on the list is Otis Anderson, who is ninth with 10,273 yards.

"Getting 10th, for me, is huge," Sanders said. "I feel a little guilty because a lot of guys have helped me get there."

Lions' den: Detroit is 19-6 in its last 24 regular-season games when scoring 20-or-more points. ... The Lions have won 17 consecutive games when leading in time of possession. ... Wayne Fontes is tied for the Lions' all-time lead with 55 coaching victories. His next win will break the deadlock with George Wilson.

Sometimes those closed-door meetings don't work.

After being blasted at Green Bay 38-21, the Vikings held a players-only meeting to deal with their 3-4 start.

The meeting didn't seem to have an impact on the Vikings' next performance. A few days after clearing the air, the Vikings lost at home to the Chicago Bears 14-6.

No picks: While the Vikings turned in a lackluster performance against the Bears, quarterback Warren Moon found himself.

Moon did not throw an interception against the Bears. That marked the first time in four games Moon was not intercepted twice.

Ouch: The loss to the Bears was the Vikings fourth in the NFC Central this season. In each of the last two seasons, the Vikings only lost three games within the division.

Sweep: The Vikings were swept by the Bears this season for the first time since 1991. ... The Vikings have lost three in a row to the Bears for the first time since Chicago took six straight from them between 1983 and 1986.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers continue to be one of the league's stingiest teams when it comes to allowing touchdowns.

Tampa Bay's defense has permitted only 11 touchdowns in nine games (plus one blocked punt). Through nine weeks, only San Francisco (9) has done a better job of protecting its end zone.

Overall, the Bucs have surrendered 16.4 points a game which ranks fourth-best in the NFL.

A plus: Five weeks ago, Tampa ranked 29th in the NFL and 15th in the NFC in turnover ratio at minus 6.

Entering its bye week, the Bucs were first in the NFC and fourth in the NFL in that category at plus 5.

The Bucs' 23 defensive takeaways was the best in the league entering the Tampa bye week.

No matter where the Bucs finish in turnover ratio, they have improved on last year's performance. The Bucs only produced 21 defensive takeaways in 1994.

Century mark: Linebacker Hardy Nickerson entered the bye week with 90 tackles. He was a lock to log at least 100 tackles for the fourth consecutive season and was likely to become the first Buc to lead the team in stops for three consecutive seasons since Jeff Davis turned the trick from 1984 to 1986.

In the hunt: Tight end Jackie Harris led the Bucs with 33 catches for 443 yards through nine games.

The former Packer was on pace to log 59 catches for 788 yards. Those marks would each be a new record for Buc tight ends surpassing the Jimmie Giles' 45 catches in 1985 and Calvin Magee in 1986 and the 786 yards racked up by Giles in 1981.

WHEN THE BEARS HAVE THE BALL

Bears wine and dine on cupcake schedule

By Laura Veras Marran

Houston, Jacksonville, Carolina, Tampa Bay and Minnesota: the first five picks in next year's NFL draft? No, those are the teams the Chicago Bears had to beat to compile their Central Division-leading 6-2 record at the half-way point.

The Bears' victims had a combined record of 17-25 heading into Week 10. Chicago has beaten only one team with a winning record, 5-4 Tampa Bay. The only other above .500 teams on Chicago's first-half schedule clearly had the upper hand, with Green Bay winning 27-24 on Monday Night Football in Week 2 and then-unbeaten St. Louis rolling up a 34-28 victory.

This time, the Bears will be visiting Lambeau Field where they'll have to hope history doesn't repeat itself. Last year, the Bears failed in their attempt to avenge the embarrassing 33-6 Monday Night Football Halloween loss to Green Bay. Revenge may have been on Chicago's mind in the Dec. 11 rematch, but the Bears couldn't find it on Lambeau Field as the Packers belted the Bears 40-3.

The Bears have lost three in a row and five of the last six to Green Bay in the NFL's oldest, most storied and best rivalry. The Bears' three-game losing streak to the Packers is their longest in 12 years.

Offense: The Bears offense has been rolling up the points as quarterback Erik Kramer passed his way to permanence in the starting role. But they may find that the Green Bay defense presents a more formidable challenge than some of the weaker D's Chicago has faced so far.

Green Bay's defense has a golden opportunity to reestablish the big play capability they exhibited in the Oct. 22 win over Minnesota. A key comparison in this department is Packers' DE Reggie

Scouting Report

White, who has already forced two game-breaking fumbles vs. Chicago rookie RB Rashaan Salaam who has a tendency to cough it up. Salaam's fourth-quarter fumble vs. Minnesota last Monday Night nearly cost the Bears the game if not for Minnesota's ineffective offense.

White may be lurking in the back of Salaam's mind, but Bears' tackle James "Big Cat" Williams will have to do most of the worrying about the league's career sack leader. Williams won't be alone, however. He's sure to get double-team help. Jay Leeuwenberg, Andy Heck and Todd Perry will have to face the Packers' "Minister of Defense," who has been known to move around quite a bit.

Due to a holdout, Salaam wasn't ready to contribute when the Packers beat the Bears in the second week of this season. He's making strides now, with two 100-yard efforts at Soldier Field, but still managed just 36 yards on 14 carries vs. the Vikings. Salaam on a chilly Lambeau Field probably won't compare to Barry Sanders on turf when the Packer defense takes notes.

Bears' wide receiver Curtis Conway will provide another test for Green Bay cornerback Craig Newsome, who suffered a rough rookie experience in Week 9 vs. Detroit's Herman Moore.

Conway, a 6-foot third year receiver, is having a banner year, tied for best in the league with eight touchdowns. But he's still not Herman Moore or Michael Irvin, who have given the young Packer DBs the most trouble this year.

Defense: Former Green Bay and Door County resident Jim Flanagan, the Bears' best defensive lineman, is about Chicago's only hope to stop Packer running back Edgar Bennett. The fullback-turned-halfback has walked all over the Bears.

Bennett scored a career-high three TDs and ran for 105 yards in the rain-soaked Halloween blowout last year. That effort was surpassed only by his 107-yard performance vs. the Bears in 1992, which stood as a career high until Bennett rushed for 121 yards in the loss at Detroit in Week 9.

This year Bennett gained 96 yards and caught two passes at Soldier Field in Week 2. Bennett has averaged 102.3 yards a game and has scored four touchdowns in the Packers' last three tilts with the Bears.

Overall, the Bears' defense has been suspect. Ranked 10th in the NFC through Week 9, Chicago allows an average of 244.8 yards passing, which could mean a field day for Brett Favre.

Chicago's secondary features standout cornerback Donnell Woolford, who has four picks through Week 9. Free agent pickup Marty Carter is a factor, a strong safety and free safety Mark Carrier is solid, but Jeremy Lincoln has struggled at right cornerback.

Special teams: Chicago's Nate Lewis ranks fifth in the NFC in kickoff returns with a 23.9-yard average. Kevin Butler, who at times has made life miserable for Green Bay, is perfect in 14 field goal attempts this season.

Packers wait an instant to nip Bears

'89 game had a classic ending

By Brett Christopherson

With just 41 seconds remaining in the game, the 137th meeting between the Green Bay Packers and the Chicago Bears appeared destined toward a frustrating conclusion.

Considering the Packers were trailing 13-7 in this classic 1989 contest, and were faced with a fourth-and-goal on Chicago's 14 yard line, it's easy to understand just why Packer fans, even the most faithful, had reason to feel the game slipping away to the hated Monsters of the Midway.

If those circumstances weren't heady enough, the mere fact that Chicago was riding an impressive eight-game winning streak over its fiercest rival gave Green and Gold fans even more reason to believe the game was simply out of reach.

Despite the odds, Green Bay had one last play to run and one shot at an improbable victory. The picture was as clear as crystal — get the ball into the end zone.

So, faced with that grim realization and nearly impossible task, especially considering the strength of Chicago's defense, Green Bay quarterback Don Majkowski stepped under center and began barking the signals for the game's final play.

Center Blair Bush snapped the ball and Majkowski immediately rolled to his right, desperately searching for someone open in the Lambeau Field end zone. But before the play could develop, Majik was forced to scramble away from Chicago defensive end Trace Armstrong.

"(Coach) Lindy (Infante) had a short slant called to Sterling on the left side," Majkowski said recently as he looked back on the memorable game. "The play kind of broke down and I had to improvise."

With Armstrong barreling in and getting closer, Majik raced toward the right sideline and inched himself closer and closer to the line of scrimmage.

Majkowski spotted wide receiver Perry Kemp in the back right corner of the end zone and thought about throwing it on the run before finding something a little more tempting and much safer — an open Sterling Sharpe over the middle and just across the goal line.

Majik quickly planted his feet at the line of scrimmage, jumped and rifled a perfect pass at the last second to Sharpe, who caught it for the game-tying touchdown with the game-winning extra point to follow.

"I was hoping Don saw me," Sharpe said after the game. "I was in the end zone and I was just praying nobody was behind me. Don saw me at the last second and threw a strike."

Not since the Ice Bowl has Lambeau Field felt this type of jubilant eruption. Even though the Packers had appeared to win only a regular season game, the fact that it came against the Bears gave everyone one more reason to smile and celebrate.

But just when the crowd was at its most feverish pitch, a small speck of yellow appeared on the green turf — a penalty had been called on the play.

To make matters worse, the call was against Green Bay. Apparently, line judge Jim Quirk felt Majkowski had crossed the line of scrimmage before throwing the tying touchdown pass which nullified the play and cost the Packers a down, giving the ball and the game to Chicago.

"I think there were a lot of guys talking to the Big Fella upstairs," Packers safety Chuck Cecil said. "I know I was one of them."

After the most excruciating four minutes in Packers history, a decision had finally been made. If Majkowski's gesture was an indication, the prognosis looked to be in Green Bay's favor.

The Packer quarterback raised both arms in the air after learning the officials overturned the penalty, and when it was officially announced Green Bay did indeed score a touchdown, Lambeau Field exploded in its second celebration of the afternoon. Place-kicker Chris Jacke added the most important extra point in team lore, giving Green Bay a 14-13 win.

"I remember there was a lot of anxiety," said Majik, who lived up to his nickname that afternoon. "It would have been a crying shame to take that touchdown away. But I felt confident and had a pretty good feeling where the line was since I'd been down there many times."

While the instant replay debate became even more of a controversy after Green Bay's win, Infante felt otherwise.

"If anybody doesn't like the instant replay now," the former coach said, "you're crazy."

Letters to the editor

Longtime problem

Dear Packer Report,

After watching the loss to the Lions, let me tell you my opinion on the problem that Green Bay has had for the last 25 years. The coaching staff is unable to turn regular players into great players while the players don't have the heart for Green Bay to do it themselves.

Sincerely,
Thomas Neff
Dublin, Ohio

Give him a chance

Dear Packer Report,

Keith Jackson brings an enormous talent to this 5-3 team that is very sound defensively and has one of the top quarterbacks in the league. We have an excellent chance of advancing beyond the second round of the playoffs and Keith Jackson improves our chances.

Let's cheer him on and withhold judgement about his character for now.

Give him a chance to show us what he can do. We are fortunate to have him here.

Sincerely,
James D. Baker
Green Bay, Wis.

Very pleased

Dear Packer Report,

I have been a fan as long as I can remember. I have to write a letter to say I am very pleased with how the season is going. With a win over the Bears and last week's satisfying win over the Vikings, I can do nothing but smile. The loss to Dallas was heartbreaking but a win will come. Besides, I would like to see the Cowboys challenge the Packers at Lambeau Field.

I hope to catch a Lambeau game this year. I was there two years ago when the Pack played Tampa Bay. I have something to say to all Packer fans. Until you have seen a game at Lambeau, you haven't seen football.

I would also like to compliment Brett Favre on an outstanding year so far. With the absence of Sterling Sharpe he has not had any trouble finding other targets.

Mike Holmgren is also responsible for the 5-3 record. Instead of the usual 2-3 start, he has totally reversed this process. Reggie White - need I say more? He is a tremendous asset.

Players like Wayne Simmons and Craig Newsome are making big plays and playing their positions well.

With all these factors, it is nice to be looked at as a playoff contender. I hope I will be lucky enough to see them take a run at the Super Bowl.

Sincerely,
Nathan R. Bitzer
Rice Lake, Wis.

Foul decision

To the editor,

The Packers never have been a team known for their fair-weather fans. However, it appears the management is now putting its faith in fair-weather teammates.

It's sad to see Keith Jackson now playing with the Green and Gold.

Sincerely,
Gary Velasco

Class acts

I had the good fortune of being able to see a couple of interviews on ESPN within the last few weeks. One on NFL Prime Monday with Reggie White and the other with Brett Favre on ESPN Up Close.

What a great feeling of pride that these players are part of the Green Bay Packer team. Prior to the Reggie White interview there was a sportscaster speaking with Deion Sanders in which he only spoke of the amount of "Ben Franklin pictures" he

My grandson in Appleton is fortunate to have players such as Reggie White and Brett Favre to admire and look up to. Both of you are real class acts. What we need is to get Jerry Jones and his Texas Cowboys, with their inflated egos, in Green Bay, Wisconsin, in the middle of December, with about 60,000 plus fans to show them who the real "America's Team" is. Give Brooks credit

Packer fans,

In 1994 when Sterling Sharpe decided to re-open his contract, he stated "It was his business." After he got hurt and the Packer organization "gambled" on his recovery, and offered him the opportunity to become the highest paid "cheerleader" in the world, he refused. After the Packers' released him (It was just business), he sued. So started the "Brooks vs. Sharpe" issue.

Tim Froberg's Oct. 28 Packer Report article, "A Perfect Fit," concerning the comparison of Robert Brooks and Sharpe, stated just about everything needed concerning the Brooks vs. Sharpe issue. Same amount of catches, touchdowns and just about equal on the yardage.

The only major difference is in 1994 Sharpe was Brett Favre's primary target while in 1995 Favre is spreading the passes to different targets. Anthony Morgan - 12 receptions, 2 touchdowns; Mark Ingram 22 receptions, 1 touchdown; Mark Chmura 28 receptions, 3 touchdowns. Can you imagine if Favre did not spread the ball around? Brooks would be way ahead in the stats.

Yes, Sterling was great, but now is the time to give Brooks and company the glory they deserve. These guys are the Packers of the future. Sorry Sterling, but your book is closed in Packer Country.

What happened?

Dear Packer Report,

What a sad Sunday in Detroit! What happened to our Packers? Why did Keith Jackson and Robert Brooks drop the balls that could have been touchdowns? How sad! I never paced the floor or prayed so hard as I did Oct. 29. We sure have to be ready for the Vikings.

FOUL WEATHER GEAR

A raincoat and flashlight aren't much help when your home or business runs on electricity.

Be prepared for heavy weather with a Kohler Standby Power System. A Kohler standby generator starts automatically within seconds of a power outage. So it'll keep sump pumps and other essential equipment running — even if you're not there.

Kohler power systems are as quiet as a central air conditioning unit. And with a natural gas fuel source, there's no need to worry about refueling in the middle of an emergency.

Are you ready to weather the next storm? For more information, call Kohler at 1-800-544-2444. Or contact Morley-Murphy Co., 799 Potts Avenue, Green Bay WI 54304. Phone (414) 499-3171.

Jill Culp, right, has a green and gold 'G' tattooed on her tooth, above.

Pearly whites crowned in Packer green and gold

Some fans will go a long way to show their loyalty to the Green Bay Packers. Jill Culp just smiles when you ask her about her Packer Pride.

Jill recently had a green and gold 'G' tattooed on a new crown ... in her mouth!

Culp, of Rochester, Minn., decided to demonstrate her staunch support for the Packers at the suggestion of her brother, who, along with Jill, grew up in Thorp, Wis., in a family of Green Bay Packer fanatics.

After she told her Minnesota Viking friends at work of her intentions, none would believe her. In fact, one Viking backer mockingly agreed to have a purple 'V' tattooed on his tooth if Jill actually followed through with her announcement.

But when Jill proudly revealed her new Green 'n' Gold tooth, the friend (in typical Minnesota Viking style) refused to honor his word.

Culp's husband, Kurt, a certified dental ceramist, performed the delicate technique which involves applying colored porcelain to the crown in a permanent process called, inlaying.

For the record, the tattoo is not the official oval 'G' of the Green Bay Packers, but it's close. Kurt Culp said that he inlaid a block 'G' to avoid any conflict with the folks at NFL licensing.

Mr. Culp has tattooed dozens of crowns over the last five years.
